

Image via Pexels

Your Three-Step Guide to Launching a New Business

Are you ready to put your business plan into action? Or, are you looking for some home-based business ideas that can be launched quickly and affordably? Whatever your needs may be, you've come to the right place. By completing the three steps below, you'll be on your way to achieving your goals of becoming a Winston, Oregon, business owner!

1. Sharpen Your Skills and Explore Easy-to-Launch Business Ideas

If you're thinking of launching a business, you may want to improve your business skills. You'll also need to come up with a business idea and create a clear and actionable business plan for it, which will help you determine whether or not your venture will actually be profitable. If you're undecided, these easy-to-launch business ideas are worth exploring. As a bonus, they don't cost much (if anything!) to start up, so you won't need to take out loans or start your business with debt.

- Love animals? Have room for more? Learn how to become a dog sitter online.

- Pursue a low-investment business idea like dropshipping, designing T-shirts, or selling handmade goods online.
- Find a babysitter job online if you're looking to start your own childcare business.
- Use an online job board to find clients for your new freelancing business.

2. Check Local Rules and Regulations

Depending on where you live and how you plan to structure your business, you may need to register your business and apply for one or more licenses and permits.

- Save on time and hefty lawyer's fees by starting a limited liability company, or LLC, with an LLC origination service.
- Follow these tips from the Small Business Administration to discover the different steps involved in starting a new business.
- Check your city's government website to find out which licenses and permits may be needed to launch your business.

3. Find or Create an Office Space for Your New Business

Whether you'll be working from home, in a coworking environment, or buying or leasing a building or retail space, these tips will help you to find the right office space for your business needs.

- Determine whether buying or leasing an office space will be best for you and your business needs.
- Convert a room into an office space if you'll be operating the new business out of your home.
- Find the perfect coworking space if a shared office environment is a better fit.

The process of launching a new business varies by location and business structure, but these tips and resources will help you to get the ball rolling. After completing the three steps above, your new business will be official and you can finally start selling your products and services.